FINDING YOUR JOY — WRITE, SHARE, CREATE

Brewster has always had a commitment to wellness — even before it was called wellness. Most recently we have focused our wellness programs on our Five to Thrive Dimensions of Wellness which include emotional, intellectual, physical, social and spiritual.

We define emotional wellness as the ability to experience and regulate varied emotions and moods. This includes being able to manage stress, finding joy, being mindful in the moment, believing in your wholeheartedness and worthiness, experiencing and identifying a wide range of emotions, and responding to these emotions in healthy ways.

Emotional wellness can be improved and enhanced through journaling, creative expression, shared experience and creating a feeling of belonging. Whether you are an introvert or extrovert, finding ways to express yourself and share your story — both the joys and sorrows of your life — is vital to your overall wellness. The programs featured below are all beneficial to emotional wellness.

JOHN LONG is our Director of Information Technology (IT). John joined the Brewster Team in June 2011, after serving 12 years in Healthcare Informatics as the IT Services Manager at St. Francis Health Center. Prior to that, John served in the Army/Army National Guard for 11 years (nine years active duty) primarily as a Programmer/Analyst and Database Administrator.

Outside of official duties at Brewster, John is an avid cyclist and chess enthusiast. He founded the Brewster Chess Club in October 2016 which continues today as a recognized Affiliate of the United States Chess Federation.” John also enjoys getting out on the golf course during the warmer months.

This summer Brewster Place will proudly unveil the Veterans Hall of Honor. Architectural drawings have been designed, and they are beautiful. Now it is time to make it truly represent our Brewster veterans.

President and CEO Joe Ewert is a veteran himself, and would like to invite other service men and women and their friends and family to a meeting to learn more about this project. Joe is passionate about this space being a permanent and lasting tribute to those who served and will serve our country.

Molly Wieland remembers a long and lovely life, filled with laughter and meaning. As she speaks, her eyes flash, seeing again times and people from long ago, now alive again in her mind. She hasn’t lost her sense of elegance or beauty.

“My Grandfather founded Kingman, Kansas,” she said, nodding, “yes, I was born Molly Stark Childs. I grew up in the big white house on the hill. The hospital was just down the street. I had one sister and one niece. We rode our bikes everywhere. It was a lovely childhood.”

Molly attended the University of Wichita (now Wichita State University) and studied a new subject, logopedics, teaching people with speech and hearing problems. After her four year course, she was sent to Garden City, where Garden City and The Community Chest financed a new subject, logopedics. Molly was their only employee, and she worked out of one room. Her clients were preschool children with speech or hearing problems and she prepared the children to go to kindergarten. The local Presbyterian Pastor in town invited Molly and an eligible young man to Sunday lunch. Soon the couple was engaged and a marriage took place at the Kingman Presbyterian Church. Molly’s sorority sisters attended the bride!

“My husband was an agronomist,” she said with a laugh. “It’s a long word but it means water management with crops. It was a new field back in the 1940s, putting up machines to water the crops. We had a very good life together and I loved living in Garden City. That life included playing bridge.”

“I learned how to play bridge in grade school,” Molly said, clapping her hands at the memory. “when we had bridge at our house, my mother served refreshments. I had to sit in while she served so I learned the game. I was prepared for married life.”

Her life in Garden City included raising three children, two daughters, Rebecca and Mary, and a son, Bill. They all had wonderful careers, gave Molly a total of five grandchildren and some “greats.”

When her children were all grown, five couples came together and occasionally made wine. One man had the recipe and they took turns with red wine. Molly said “the wine we made tasted so delicious. We were so pleased to be able to do this.”

After a brief moment, Molly spoke again, “I made the champagne for my daughter’s wedding. It was wonderful and there wasn’t any left at the end of the wedding.” A beautiful smile spread across Molly’s face and she appeared transported to her daughter’s wedding. She appeared absolutely regal.

Molly said, “I moved to Brewster four years ago in June. I love it here. The people are friendly, the food is good, I don’t have to go out in the cold, and people clean my home; what else would I want?”
EVERY PERSON HAS EXPERIENCED, IS EXPERIENCING, OR WILL EXPERIENCE GRIEF. GRIEF OCCURS IN RESPONSE TO AN INDIVIDUAL’S OWN TERMINAL ILLNESS, LOSS OF A CLOSE RELATIONSHIP, DEATH OF A VALUED BEING: HUMAN OR ANIMAL, LOSS OF DRIVING PRIVILEGES, OR LEAVING/SELLING ONE’S HOME. GRIEF IS REAL.

THE ORIGINAL FIVE STAGES OF GRIEF WERE FIRST PROPOSED BY ELISABETH KÜBLER-ROSS IN HER 1969 BOOK “ON DEATH AND DYING.” SINCE THAT TIME, TWO MORE STAGES HAVE BEEN ADDED. WE SPEND DIFFERENT LENGTHS OF TIME WORKING THROUGH THE STAGES OF GRIEF AND EXPRESSING THEM WITH DIFFERENT LEVELS OF INTENSITY. THE SEVEN STAGES DO NOT NECESSARILY OCCUR IN ANY SPECIFIC ORDER. THE KEY TO UNDERSTANDING THE STAGES IS NOT TO FEEL LIKE YOU MUST GO THROUGH EVERY ONE OF THEM IN PRECISE ORDER. INSTEAD, IT’S MORE HELPFUL TO LOOK AT THEM AS GUIDES IN THE GRIEVING PROCESS — IT HELPS YOU UNDERSTAND AND PUT INTO CONTEXT WHERE YOU ARE.

SEVEN STAGES OF GRIEF

SHOCK
The first reaction to learning of terminal illness or death is shock or disbelief. It is difficult to believe that this is happening. Many people report numbness where they don’t feel anything at first. This experience can be surprising to many individuals because they may not immediately sense the devastating feelings they would expect to feel with such news. This may last for weeks.

DENIAL
Denial is a normal reaction to rationalize overwhelming emotions. It may be how one expresses their emotions surrounding grief. Example, a person who continually says, “I’m fine,” after a significant loss is likely denying his or her feelings. It is a defense mechanism that buffers the immediate shock. This is a temporary response that carries us through the first wave of pain.

ANGER
As the masking effects of shock and denial begin to wear, reality and its pain re-emerge. We are not ready. The intense emotion is deflected from our vulnerable core, redirected and expressed instead as anger. The anger may be aimed at lifeless objects, complete strangers, friends or family. Anger may be directed at our dying or deceased loved one. Rationally, we know the person is not to be blamed. Emotionally, however, we may resent the person for causing us pain or for leaving us. We feel guilty for being angry, and this makes us angrier.

BARGAINING
The normal reaction to feelings of helplessness and vulnerability is often a need to regain control—
- If only we had sought medical attention sooner...
- If only we had gotten a second opinion from another doctor...
- If only we had tried to be a better person toward them...
Secretly, we may make a deal with God or our higher power in an attempt to postpone the inevitable. This is a weaker line of defense to protect us from the painful reality.

GUILT
This can occur when the bereaved has regrets about things they did or said before the loved one died. There is a wish to turn back the clock and do some things differently. It is helpful to find someone to talk to, to share your memories and regrets in a supportive environment: pastor, chaplain, social worker, or counselor. Life feels chaotic and even scary during this phase.

LARGE ANTIQUE PIECES, FAMILY HEIRLOOMS, NUMEROUS PIECES OF WALL ART AND EVEN A KING SIZE BED ALL COMFORTABLY FIT IN REDWOOD’S LARGEST APARTMENTS.

At more than one thousand square feet, a Redwood two bedroom, two bath apartment is the size of a small home. With no stairs to navigate and no worries about the laundry room location, these two bedroom homes are perfect for those wanting to bring more of their history to their new home on campus.

The featured homes this month include two different two bedroom apartments. Redwood 305 is an east-facing apartment that serves as a model to showcase a furnished apartment with some large pieces of furniture and large walk-in closet in the master bedroom.

Redwood 423 also faces east and has a unique arch doorway leading from the living room to the den (or second bedroom). Each room has sliding glass doors to a private balcony offering residents great access to outdoor seating and wonderful morning light.

If you or a friend would like to take a tour of these spacious apartments, or any of our available homes, please call Lifestyle Consultants Chris Gallagher at 274-3351 or Kathy Clark at 274-3314.

This month’s featured apartments come with a $1,000 gift certificate to the Furniture Mall of Kansas if a contract is signed by March 17.

DEPRESSION
Two types of depression are associated with grief. The first one is a reaction to practical implications relating to the loss. Sadness and regret pre-dominate this type of depression. We worry that, in our grief, we have spent less time with others that depend on us. This phase may be eased by simple clarification and reassurance. We may need a bit of helpful cooperation and a few kind words. The second type of depression is more subtle and, in a sense, more private. During this time, you may isolate yourself on purpose, reflect on things you did with your loved one, and focus on memories of the past. You may sense feelings of emptiness or despair. Sometimes all we really need is a hug.

ACCEPTANCE
Reaching this stage of mourning is a gift not afforded to everyone. Death may be sudden and unexpected or we may never see beyond our anger or denial. It is not necessarily a mark of bravery to resist the inevitable and to deny ourselves the opportunity to make our peace. This phase is marked by withdrawal and calmness. This is not a period of happiness and must be distinguished from depression. Loved ones that are terminally ill or aging appear to go through a final period of withdrawal. This is by no means a suggestion that they are aware of their own impending death, only that physical decline may be sufficient to produce a similar response. Their behavior implies that it is natural to reach a stage at which social interaction is limited. The dignity and grace shown by our dying loved ones may well be their last gift to us.

Coping with loss is ultimately a deeply personal and individual experience — nobody can help you go through it more easily or understand all the emotions that you’re going through. But others can be there for you and help comfort you through this process. The best thing you can do is to allow yourself to feel the grief as it comes over you. Resisting it only will prolong the natural process of healing.

If you have experienced a loss in your life, whatever that might be, you are not alone. Please join us for a new...

Are you a status quo kind of person? Are you content to roll along quietly in the same routine? Or, like me, are you ready to “mix it up” this year and try something new?

Let’s learn to speak Italian — or learn to crochet — or strap an easel on our backs and paint along the Appalachian Trail! But wait! What if we don’t know any Italian or we seem to have too many fingers or not enough thumbs or our knees hurt so hiking is not an option? After all, we are in our 60s, 70s, 80s and 90s.

But what if we never try? I recently saw this quote: “Be brave enough to be bad at something new.” What a powerful message! I’m reminded at work every day that Brewster Place is FULL of people who jump right in and just keep learning and trying — residents who haven’t sewn for years who sit down at a machine and make toys for the Bazaar or residents who pick up a brush for the first time in their lives and realize they love playing with paint. Everybody is a beginner sometimes, and everybody is bad at the beginning. So what!

So, I’m challenging myself to pick up the needles and let Pat Finson try and teach me to crochet — again! I might be bad at first, but I might get better — and I might learn to love crocheting — and if I don’t, just trying helped stretch my imagination. And that’s what being creative is all about.

If you would like to be bad at something new, I’m your gal. Let’s try something new and learn together.
On Campus — A few highlights!

Music for a Sunday Afternoon with Jeff Kready
Sunday, February 16 | 2:00 pm | Lobbies
Topeka native and Broadway star Jeff Kready will perform Broadway standards you have loved and new songs that will become favorites. Jeff will also share backstage stories and adventures in parenting. This concert is at the Topeka and Shawnee County Public Library and is sure to be a full house. The concert begins at 3:30 pm. We will leave at 2:00 pm to get in line for seats. Jamie has reserved 20 tickets for the event, so space is limited. Tickets are free. Please call Jamie at 274-3398 for reservations.

Topeka Symphony Orchestra
Sunday, February 22 | 6:45 pm | Lobbies
This concert looks to the great American landscape as inspiration and will feature not only great music, but also beautiful and inspirational photography. Aaron Copland’s Outdoor Overture will bring us out into the fresh air. Then we will move to the majestic mountains, trees, rivers, and coastlines in Dave Brubeck’s Ansel Adams: America, featuring a spectacular slideshow of the great photographer’s works. In addition, rising superstar violinist Tessa Lark comes to Topeka to perform Sky, a bluegrass-inspired concerto that will absolutely bring down the house. The Symphony will also feature local Topeka composer Robert Johnson’s Celebration Overture. Do not miss this amazing chance to see—and hear—America the Beautiful! Please call Jamie at 274-3398 for transportation reservations. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Movie Day Out at B & B Theatre
Tuesday, February 25 | TBD | Lobbies
This is the new movie theatre that everyone is talking about. The seats are all reclining lounge chairs and some are heated. We are hoping to see the movie EMMA. Emma is a Jane Austen comedy about finding your equal and earning your happy ending. We are going on Tuesday because tickets are $5. Show times have not been released, but please let Jamie know if you are interested in going to the movies by calling her at 274-3398.

Day Out in Lawrence
Thursday, February 27 | 9:15 am | Lobbies
We will begin our day learning about building organs at the Reuter Organ Company in Lawrence. Organ building holds a unique place in the world of instrument making, combining handcrafted artistry with computerized technology to produce the largest and most complex of all musical instruments. We will then have a yummy Dutch treat lunch. After lunch we will tour Repetition Coffee learning about the process of making the best cup of coffee. Transportation is $13. Please call Jamie at 274-3398 for reservations.
